Dear Sergio:

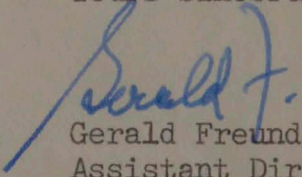

It is more than a year ago now that Jack Harrison and I had our pleasant visit with you and others in Santiago. Since then the only communication we have received here concerning the Writers' Workshop of the University of Concepcion was in a letter of October 15, 1962, from Rector Dr. Ignacio Gonzalez G. who informed us that the Workshop would resume its activities the following month.

I wonder if you would be good enough to bring me and my colleagues up to date. Did the Workshop function throughout the last academic year? Who were its members? What were the most significant accomplishments? Has the Workshop now terminated its activities or is it continuing and if so, are meetings still held at Concepcion or now in Santiago? I would be grateful to you for passing some of this information along to us.

We do hope that an officer of the Foundation's Humanities and Social Sciences Program will be able to visit Santiago before long, but at this time a visit has not been definitely scheduled.

With best regards,

Yours sincerely,

Gerald Freund
